

Amazon.com readers say: ...a thoroughly enjoyable reading experience, I say, Bravissima. I actually read the book on a plane going to Italy so that really added to the fun. Like a good pasta sauce, its full of the subtle flavorings of multiple spicy accents! A traditional country-house murder mystery with lovely Tuscan sights, Italian love interests, mysteries, laughs and tugs on the heartstrings. In the style of the Ngaio Marsh and Dorothy L. Sayers mystery novels, a leisurely read with a light touch with little gore or violence, lots of suspect characters and a bit of romance. Julie gladly leaves her retirement home to attend a protegees wedding in Tuscany. But when someone is murdered at her welcome party, and the chief suspect is the Italian fiance, Julie finagles her way into working with the local Marshal to discover the truth. The reader follows Julie along her not-always-smooth path to discover all she can about the possible suspects and motives for the murder. There is some danger for Julie, and for the others involved in the case. The resolution brings clarity and relief, as well as a new beginning for Julie, in Italy.
